1. THE GLORY DAYS

Once upon a time there was a beautiful bay called Portman, on the Murcian coast, which used to be a coastal paradise. The Romans named it "Portus Magnus" because of its majestic beach, which served as a strategic port. For centuries, the bay thrived, connecting to Rome via sea routes and witnessing diverse cultures and conflicts.

The galleys unloaded ingots of silver, copper and other precious metals. The bay was full of activity and wealth.

2. THE DECLINE

In this area it was common to work in mining and dump the waste into the water, but it left its mark. The surrounding hills cracked and the bay was filled with mineral waste. The water became toxic. Fish died and marine life disappeared. Portmán Bay became an ecological disaster.

3. THE ENVIROMENTAL FIGHT

The community didn't give up. They came together to clean the bay and restore its beauty natural.

Today, Portmán Bay has been reborn. It is a refuge for nature and a reminder of the importance of taking care of our environment.
